

Scooter is my son Brian's first dog; they were inseparable from the time Scooter was six weeks old. They ate and slept together, I mean they were together almost 24/7. At five months we dropped Scooter off with Eddie to start his training. Pretty tough deal if you are attached to your dog like we are. Eddie welcomed (and encouraged) visits, phone calls and emails from day one. We visited, called and emailed a lot. He always makes time to discuss where your dog is with his progress and how he is doing. One thing I noticed early on was that the dogs liked and respected Eddie. Personally, I think that is very important. I would not hesitate to recommend even my closest friends to let Eddie train their dogs.
